RECORD OF AMICABLE RESOLUTION FOR THE

SETTLEMENTS VERSION 2.0, ADOPTED 12 MAY 2022

Data Protection Commission
21 Fitzwilliam Square South
Dublin 2, Ireland

Background

1. On 11 April 2023, [REDACTED] (“the Data Subject”) lodged a complaint pursuant to Article 77 GDPR with the Data Protection Commission (“the DPC”) concerning Google Ireland Limited (“the Respondent”).
2. The DPC was deemed to be the competent authority for the purpose of Article 56(1) GDPR.

The Complaint

3. The details of the complaint were as follows:
 - a. The Data Subject had developed a Chrome extension for use with the Respondent’s search engine. The Respondent subsequently informed the Data Subject that it had removed this Chrome extension from its Web Store on the grounds that it was “performing malicious activities which are harmful to users”.
 - b. On 6 January 2023, the Data Subject submitted an access request pursuant to Article 15 GDPR in order to obtain more information about why their Chrome extension was removed and to understand the decision-making process involved.
 - c. On 25 January 2023, the Respondent replied to acknowledge receipt of the Data Subject’s request and to explain that it needed to extend the timeframe required for a response.
 - d. No further response was received from the Respondent and, accordingly, the Data Subject lodged a complaint with the DPC.

Action taken by the DPC

4. The DPC, pursuant to Section 109(4) of the Data Protection Act, 2018 (“the 2018 Act”), is required, as a preliminary matter, to assess the likelihood of the parties to the complaint reaching, within a reasonable time, an amicable resolution of the subject-matter of the complaint. Where the DPC considers that there is a reasonable likelihood of such an amicable resolution being concluded between the parties, it is empowered, by Section 109(2) of the 2018 Act, to take such steps as it considers appropriate to arrange or facilitate such an amicable resolution.
5. Following a preliminary examination of the material referred to it by the Data Subject, the DPC considered that there was a reasonable likelihood of the parties concerned reaching, within a reasonable time, an amicable resolution of the subject matter of the complaint. The DPC’s experience is that complaints of this nature are particularly suitable for amicable resolution in circumstances where there is an obvious solution to the dispute, if the respondent is willing to engage in the process. In this regard, the DPC had regard to:

- a. The relationship between the Data Subject and Respondent (being, in this case, an individual user and a service provider); and
 - b. The nature of the complaint (in this case, an unsuccessful attempt by the Data Subject to exercise their data subject rights).
6. While not relevant to the assessment that the DPC is required to carry out pursuant to Section 109(4) of the 2018 Act, the DPC also had regard to EDPB Guidelines 06/2022 on the practical implementation of amicable settlements Version 2.0, adopted on 12 May 2022 (“Document 06/2022”), and considered that:
 - a. the possible conclusion of the complaint by way of amicable resolution would not hamper the ability of the supervisory authorities to maintain the high level of protection that the GDPR seeks to create; and that
 - b. such a conclusion, in this case, would likely carry advantages for the Data Subject, whose rights under the GDPR would be vindicated swiftly, as well as for the controller, who would be provided the opportunity to bring its behaviour into compliance with the GDPR.

Amicable Resolution

7. The DPC engaged with both the Data Subject and Respondent in relation to the subject matter of the complaint. On 10 August 2023, the DPC wrote to the Respondent formally commencing its investigation and requesting it address the concerns raised.
8. In response, the Respondent explained the reasons why the Data Subject’s Chrome extension had been removed from its Web Store. The Respondent further explained that it had since carried out a review of that decision and was satisfied that the removal could be reversed. As a result, the Respondent reinstated the Data Subject’s Chrome extension to its Web Store. The Respondent reached out to the Data Subject directly to explain the foregoing and provided a copy of this correspondence to the DPC.
9. In light of the explanations provided by the Respondent and its reinstatement of the Data Subject’s Chrome extension to the Web Store, the DPC considered it appropriate to conclude the complaint by way of amicable resolution. As such, on 30 August 2023, the DPC wrote to the Data Subject proposing an amicable resolution to the complaint on the basis of the foregoing actions. In the circumstances, the DPC asked the Data Subject to notify it, within a specified timeframe, if they were not satisfied with the outcome, so that the DPC could take further action. On 5 September 2023, the Data Subject responded to the DPC to confirm that they were satisfied that the complaint had been amicably resolved.
10. In circumstances where the subject matter of the complaint has been amicably resolved, in full, the complaint, by virtue of Section 109(3) of the 2018 Act, is deemed to have been withdrawn by the Data Subject.

Confirmation of Outcome

11. For the purpose of Document 06/2022, the DPC confirms that:

- a. The complaint, in its entirety, has been amicably resolved between the parties concerned;
- b. The agreed resolution is such that the object of the complaint no longer exists; and
- c. Having consulted with the supervisory authorities concerned on the information set out above, as required by Document 06/2022 the DPC has now closed off its file in this matter.

12. If dissatisfied with the outcome recorded herein, the parties have the right to an effective remedy by way of an application for judicial review, by the Irish High Court, of the process applied by the DPC in the context of the within complaint.
